Re: Richard Keleher
Architectural Consulting Services

To Whom It May Concern:

I was happy to hear recently that Richard Keleher has opened an architectural consulting practice. I have relied on Richard's sound technical advice for over sixteen years, starting with our work together on the detailing of pressure-equalized rain screen cladding elements for the Central Artery project in Boston, and more recently for advice on a large production housing project here at JSA for a difficult climate. Mr. Keleher has a deep understanding both of the physics of building and the aesthetics of design, a combination that seems to be rare in the construction industry.

I can highly recommend Richard's consulting services for projects of any level of technical complexity.

Sincerely,
